Valuable Records Saved in Blaze

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Fire of undetermined origin early yesterday swept through a section of a three-story wooden temporary government building causing damage estimated at $10,000. Valuable records from the auditor-general, treasury, unemployment insurance, dependents' allowance and other offices were saved and employees carried on in a recently-vacated RCAR building.

TWENTIETH CANADIAN WARSHIP LOST—Twentieth ship reported lost by the Royal Canadian Navy since the outbreak of war, HMCS Clayoquot, veteran Bangor minesweeper, has been torpedoed and sunk, with the loss of eight lives, it was announced by Naval Service Headquarters. The Clayoquot, shown above, had taken an active part in the Battle of the Atlantic, mostly on convoy escort duty, since the fall of 1941. She is the first Canadian Bangor minesweeper known to have been lost by enemy action.

Heroism Born as Clayoquot Sent to Bottom by Torpedo

By JOHN LEBLANC

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Jan. 31—(CP)—Heroism was born out of the sinking of HMCS Clayoquot as shipmates fought to save one another in the bone-chilling Atlantic water after the little minesweeper-escort had gone to the bottom from a Nazi torpedo explosion.

Survivors, who reached this port after the loss of the Bangor-type craft just before Christmas when a sub had been sighted after sinking a ship in convoy, they related too how they had seen companionships of the Clayoquot—loss of which was announced last night—blazing away at what they presumed was the surfaced U-boat after the sinking. However, only one of the rescued men had seen what he thought was the sub, and he wasn't sure of it.

In one of the rare instances where a sub has been sighted after sinking a ship in convoy, they related too how they had seen companionships of the Clayoquot—loss of which was announced last night—blazing away at what they presumed was the surfaced U-boat after the sinking. However, only one of the rescued men had seen what he thought was the sub, and he wasn't sure of it.

NO WARNING GIVEN

But there was no warning before the sub struck. The torpedo—believed by the survivors to be of the acoustic type, and apparently drawn by the thrust of the propellers—smashed suddenly into the stern of Clayoquot at 10:40 a.m.

The warship, which was about to finish one escort job and take up another, plummeted down in 10 minutes, her whole after section ripped apart.

Eight men went down with her, killed by the initial blast. Seven—three of her complement of 81 got away in the ship's whaler and Carley floats.

Last man to leave the doomed vessel was her captain, 27-year-old Lt. Cmdr. Craig Campbell of Victoria, who jumped from the settling ship after making sure all still alive had left her. The Clayoquot went under a minute after he abandoned her.

CITES TWO HEROES

Two heroes who emerged from the crowded minutes of death and impending death were Able Seaman Bruce Williams of Toronto and Leading Coder William Petrie of Montreal. A strong swimmer, Williams "helped several men onto a raft when they were pretty well done in," the skipper said.

Petrie pulled out at least one man, shipmates said, and saw to it that some men equipped with lifebelts swam away from an overcrowded raft so that men without lifebelts could find places on the raft. Fellow seamen credited Williams with the rescue of at least two men, but he said he didn't know about that.

"I just got one that I know," he said. "I don't remember any others."

Coolness of all personnel was commended by the three surviving officers, who said it was largely due to the absolute absence of panic that every man who survived the original blast was saved. The whole crew went to its various posts until the order to abandon ship was given.

Three men who contributed largely to the wholesale saving of life, the master said, were Leading Seaman Mervyn Crane, a bewhiskered hand from Mount Forest, Ont.; Leading Seaman H. F. Howes of Edmonton and Able Seaman Robert Nordlund of Vancouver.

Unable to release the falls to get the ship's whaler into the water in time, they slashed them with their pusser's dirks (tissue knives). Twenty-four men piled into the boat, burdening her to the gun-wales.

Narrow escapes were plentiful, and perhaps the cooks in the galley had the closest. They were just taking the day's roast beef out of the oven when the blast came. It tossed a depth charge from the stern in a looping parabola that dropped it to the deck just outside the hatchway that provided the galley's only exit.

To get out of their quarters, the cooks had to climb to the top of the stove and haul themselves out through the hatch past the "ash can." "We got a hotfoot," said P. Philip Dorion of Kenora, Ont., one of the cooks, "but we broke all records getting out of that galley."

CLOSE TO EXPLOSION

Lieut. Milton Cameron, of Montreal and Chateaugay, Que., the Clayoquot's first lieutenant, was the nearest man to the scene of the explosion who survived. He was in the wardroom, at the sternmost part of the superstructure, when the blow came. He escaped with a slight cut over one eye.

Just below him, the four officers off watch were killed instantly as they slept in their bunks. They were Lieut. Hall Finlay of Montreal, navigating officer; Sub-Lt. A. W. Calbeck of Hamilton, Man.; Sub-Lt. William Munro of Huntingdon, Que.; and Sub-Lt. John D. Neil of St. Catharines, Ont., the chief engineer.

On lookout duty at the stern, OS John R. Bate of Port Credit, Ont., and Walter Brozovich of Windsor and Timmons, Ont., also died instantly. The other two victims were AB Edmund Hilyard of Kingston, Ont., and AB Lloyd W. Smith of Charlottetown.

RIPPED AFTER DECK

The explosion ripped the after deck with such force that the heavy winch of the minesweeping gear near the stern was tossed the length of the ship to land on the forecastle.

The Clayoquot went down, the survivors in the water were jolted heavily by the explosion of some of her depth charges—the captain thought two—went off. One seaman—Bill Smith of Lancashire, Eng.—suffered internal injuries from the underwater explosions, but the others were unhurt.

Most of the men were in good shape when they were finally taken aboard the corvette Fenel, but a few had to be taken to hospital with "immersion foot."

From the water, the men watched while a merchant ship in the convoy opened fire on what they took to be the submarine. However, no results were discernable.

Sub-Lt. Vic Graves of Nelson, B.C., one of the three surviving officers, thought he saw the sub as he bobbed in the water. "I made out what I took to be the conning tower," he said, "but I wouldn't be sure of it. You can't see much from that angle, and besides, we had other things to worry about right then."

LOST FULL KIT

The red-headed young officer, decked out in borrowed clothes, had lost his full kit along with $250 he had in his cabin. He was the officer of the watch when the Clayoquot was sunk.

A couple of members of the ship's company who missed the sinking were Stoker Ronald Dolan of Welland, Ont., and OS George Dods of Yorkton, Sask. Survivors gleefully related how Dolan had "missed the boat" after a pre-Christmas party in Halifax, while Dods had gone on leave just before the Clayoquot's last sailing.

Two men aboard who had joined the ship just before she sailed were Electrical Artificer Fred Peel of Edmonton and AB Fred Van Zeylen of Nassau, Bahamas. Both survived.

curled on the small island of Campbell, New Brunswick, where the family had had a summer residence for many years. Of course Roosevelt got mad at the innocent island, and he refused for more than 10 years to return there. But when he was elected President, he broke the ban himself and went back to the island, as if to tell destiny: "You see, I was stronger."

RETURNED TO TRIUMPH

It may well be that none of his victories over his human enemies has brought him as much satisfaction as that day when he returned in triumph to the place of his misfortune after 10 years of absence.

Roosevelt, unlike Churchill, is neither a soldier nor a poet. But he is a nobleman through and through. This shows in his manners more than in those of Churchill. In contrast to the blunt Churchill, he knows how to ingratiate himself with people.

Once I watched him receive visitors during two mornings. With his agreement, I pretended to be a painter making drawings of him. I learned quite a lot in those hours. I was astonished at the intuitive finesse with which he knew how to treat everyone who entered—and each time with different means. His art of being always cordial and natural without losing his dignity is that of a master. It enabled him to reconcile in half an hour a man who entered as his opponent.

He has to be seated the whole time, and the persons coming to see him, in the first and last minutes, are standing. Thus he has to raise his head, and everybody is impressed by his open look, full of frankness. Of course, he is moody sometimes, but very rarely does he show it.

COMPARE VOICES

To know both Roosevelt and Churchill, one only has to compare their voices. Roosevelt's is always conciliatory, suggestive, smiling, almost delicate, like a violinello. Churchill speaks in a hammered style and tone, preferably grumbling or threatening.

Roosevelt shows his informality in that he calls every third person by his first name, although even his most intimate friends do not answer in the same way. He constantly calls Churchill "Winston," but Churchill continues to call him "Mr. President."

In another respect, too, Roosevelt is truly American; he does not like solitude, so badly needed by Churchill—no, he cannot live without company. Thus, twelve years in office could not tire him, for he welcomes every new activity and enjoys new faces.

LOVES POLITICS

He loves politics. When I asked him once what made Wilson fail, he said: "You know how much I admire Wilson and how I shared his ideas. But such a thing as the League needed a politician like me."

It is an old error to criticize the means by which men who want to do right attain their aims. Roosevelt's fight against the privileges of his own class does not lose its value by his leading it as a clever politician. To me, he appears like Count Mirabeau, who also fought against his own class. Roosevelt succeeded in this way. When I told him of this comparison, he was not satisfied at all, but he laughed and said: "That is better than if you had compared me to Talleyrand."

A nation long governed by a single man becomes critical of him. That happened to Bismarck. He governed Germany most successfully for twenty-eight years, but when he finally quit, the entire nation heaved a sigh of relief.

That represents the price a man has to pay for a splendid and long career, whether it be a bank director, orchestra conductor, tenor or president of a country. Nations are not immediately appreciative. Only the second generation erects monuments to deserving leaders.

In democracies, the critical attitude is increased by fear lest a repeatedly re-elected president become a dictator. In this country, however, safeguarding controls are so strong that only a mad-man could conceive of Roosevelt overthrowing the constitution.

I asked him once whether he did not feel jealous in reading how dictators simply issue orders. "Jealous?" he laughed. "I would be bored by being a dictator! I enjoy a good fight with Congress."

SENSE OF HUMOR

In wartime, the temptation for leaders increases. War, indeed, does not permit 100 per cent. operation of formal democracy. The commander in Europe and the chief of staff at home need freedom of action.

That the United States' constitution made the president commander-in-chief was among its wisest provisions. Such a situation is found neither in England nor France. And what conflicts Bismarck had with his generals! I make bold to say that the combining of supreme political and military power in one person is among the guarantees of America's victory.

But the enormous burden of responsibility and the necessity of making decisions every hour can be borne only by a man who is able to counter-balance it by a sense of humor. As a European, I am in a favorable position to appreciate this. I have been familiar with Europe's chancelleries, and I've had opportunities of observing personally many of her Prime Ministers. In no other capital does one find as much laughter as in Washington. It is only in America that the same men who bear with greatest seriousness their responsibility for the fate of millions are inclined to tell amusing anecdotes.

attitude which, in such situations, leads to success. Hitler, who suffers from nerve convulsions is lost on this score alone.

Today, at the beginning of his fourth term, Roosevelt is facing the great question: Should he continue to advance the liberal ideas of his beginnings or should he leave them behind? Such a choice would be no problem for Churchill, who has never stopped being a Tory, but it is a problem for the more liberal Roosevelt and might perhaps be decisive for his future glory.

In regard to glory, the two men resemble each other. Both are very much occupied with their positions in history. I say this to their honor, because Plutarch's men also lived their post-glory.

Avert Deadlock

ATHENS, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Agreement of the EAM central committee to send a three-man delegation here for Thursday's conference seeking a settlement of Greece's internal difficulties apparently dissipated fears of a deadlock yesterday.

While firemen still probed the smoldering ruins of the storey-and-a-half wooden house for other possible victims, City Manager Ira B. Safford announced that 18 bodies had been recovered, including 17 children and the body of Miss Rose Cote, 50, an employee.

He said that five children and two women were saved. These were Mrs. Eva La Costa, operator of the house, her three sons, Laurent, 14, Guy, 9, and Norman, 6, Mrs. Loretta Fournier, an employee, and two of the boarding babies.

"Our best count now," said Safford, "is that a total of 23 persons were in the house when the fire started."

Election Time

A general Dominion election is to be held some time during the spring or early summer—the exact date depending, it may be supposed, on the course of events overseas. The present parliament is to be dissolved before April 17th, the date on which its term would expire.

This announcement by the Prime Minister sets at rest the question of whether the term will be extended. There is to be no extension. At the same time latitude is allowed to fix a date, if possible, when our troops overseas will not be heavily engaged. Probably the expectation is that Germany will surrender before the vote has to be taken.

Mr. King has consistently opposed the idea of extending the life of the present parliament, holding that the spirit and purpose of parliamentary government are better served if the electors are consulted at intervals of not more than five years. With that view most Canadians are in agreement.

One, however, to the contrary. Mr. Garfield Case, Conservative candidate in North Grey, shrieked "coercion" when the Prime Minister announced his decision to call an election. What he would have said had the decision been to extend the life of parliament it would be interesting to know.

Ill-Health No Bar

Any discharged member of Canada's armed services, man or woman, can secure life insurance up to $10,000 without having to pass a medical examination. That is the substance of the Veterans' Insurance Act, which is to become operative toward the end of February. The insurance may be taken out any time within three years of the date of discharge. Widows and widowers of service men and women may make use of the privilege in cases where the veterans have not done so.

The purpose is to enable veterans to provide insurance protection for their dependents even if they could not physically measure up to the standards ordinarily required. Service men and women who may have suffered in health are thereby placed on the same footing as civilians who have no physical disqualifications. Whether they have disabilities or not, makes no difference if they want to insure.

The hope of course is that great numbers of those leaving the services will promptly apply for this insurance. The more who do so, and the earlier they do so, the better. In particular it is personally advisable and publicly desirable that those who are not carrying any insurance make use of this exceptional opportunity.

The World Needs Him

President Roosevelt passed his 63rd milestone on Tuesday. The congratulations which poured into Washington from all the United Nations were no less meaningful than those which came from his own countrymen. Mr. Roosevelt is one of a remarkable group of men to whom has fallen the duty of leading the fight for freedom against the most formidable combination ever formed to destroy national liberties and reduce mankind to serfdom. It detracts nothing from the credit due to Marshal Stalin and Mr. Churchill to say that neither of them has carried a heavier load, steered a straighter course, nor given his time and talents more unreservedly to the great cause, than has President Roosevelt.

If the United States had not lent its aid, first as a non-belligerent and later as an Ally, the battle against the Axis could not possibly have gone as favorably as it has gone. It might, quite conceivably, have gone the other way. And outsiders may be pardoned for thinking that if it had not been for Mr. Roosevelt the United States would have stood aloof unless and until it was attacked. The aid which he gave to Russia and Britain before Pearl Harbor at least gave them a chance to fight on something like even terms. Without lend-lease equipment then they might not have been able to keep the battle going.

For these reasons, and also because he will be needed to help shape the settlement and get the nations started on their post-war security plans, the Allied world joins in the prayer that good health and undiminished powers may continue to be the lot of the President.

After Berlin?

As things now stand, the capture of Berlin is entirely possible within a matter of weeks—perhaps days. But it will be as well if people in the Allied home-lands recognize that the fall of the capital may not end the war, much less the guerrilla operations which Nazi spokesmen have declared they would adopt as a last resort.

The Chinese lost their national capital years ago, but they are not beaten yet. The Russians lost but lost Moscow three years ago, but they didn't stop fighting when the government offices and officials had to be moved to a far interior point. The Nazis may continue organized warfare from some provisional capital when Berlin has to be given up; or they may decide to abandon organized warfare for the "under ground" kind they could not stamp out in France, Norway or Yugoslavia in four years of relentless effort.

Neither of these things may happen. But either or both may happen. And there have been enough unpleasant and unexpected turns in this war to warn prudent people against being confident that what we want to occur will occur.

Besides, Berlin has not been captured yet. Unless enemy morale has collapsed, there may be a long hard struggle before even that mile-post is reached on the road to victory. Hope, as we must, that the city will fall soon, and that its fall will mark the end of serious resistance, to expect this too confidently would only be to build up for a possible shock of disappointment. Remember how V-day preparations went out like candles when Von Rundstedt threw his panzer divisions against the Allied line in the Ardennes?

The American 1st and 3rd Armies have flattened out the Ardennes bulge and are resuming their interrupted offensive where they left off when the interruption occurred. By sacrificing 20,000 men Von Rundstedt gained a four-week respite from the attack on the Saar. That Germany gained anything else from the "victory" is not apparent. And those lost divisions are needed now, on both fronts.

Pushing back an enemy and occupying new territory has not usually meant much in this war, except for the effect on morale. But Upper Silesia is more than so many square miles on the map. In losing that area the Reich lost two-fifths of its coal supply, one-fifth of the zinc output and half the lead production, along with hundreds of plants where munitions were being turned out. Only the loss of the Ruhr could cut down the supply of war tools more heavily. That makes a difference.

Smokers will note with interest an item of news which comes from the department of agriculture at Washington. The research men there say they have discovered a substance which they call "rutin," which eases down high blood pressure—and which comes from the leaves of the tobacco plant. Maybe this is what the puffers have been waiting for—somebody to explain in scientific terms what they have sensed as the "soothing" effect of the fragrant weed.

Calgary.—This section of the Territories is much stirred up over autonomy developments. A rumor is that Edmonton is to be made the first capital of the province of Alberta. Feeling is consequently running high in Calgary, and a mass meeting is to be held. Sentiment here favors the selection of some obscure point such as Banff for the provincial capital, leaving it to the legislature to select the permanent location.

Some Vagrant Thoughts Upon Flying Across Canada

Edmonton to Montreal in Eighteen Hours is an Experience

By HAROLD L. WEIR.

This, I warn you, is purely personal. So if any one objects, let him turn over now to the more lively pages in the paper.

I had sudden occasion, one week ago last Sunday, to travel eastward. So I boarded a plane in Edmonton at the grim and ghostly hour of 8:15 in the morning.

And I can remember many delightful air trips in Europe, notably my first one across the English Channel, leaving behind the rich and lovely verdure of Kent to ride high over the more parched greens of France. At that time, I recall, in my imagination, the route followed by D'Artagnan from Paris to the coast as he rode, pursued by Richelieu, to recover the diamond studs of the Queen of France from lavish Buckingham.

Oh yes, I have flown. But never before across Canada.

Let me interject, at this point, the thought that it is always a good thing to leave home.

I have flown, yes. But not for, say, six years.

I have bounced violently up the Fraser Valley in a Gypsy Moth, negotiating air bumps in a manner that must have been excellent for my liver but of doubtful value to my soul. I recall with peculiar delight a flight from Seattle to Spokane when a great round moon was flooding the Cascades with silver.

It is a good thing to leave home, not necessarily because it affords one the pleasure of getting back to it, but because, as Chesterton once brilliantly argued, one can only find one's home by going away from it.

In other words, if you should be packing your bags for a voyage and someone should ask you where you are going, the proper answer is "Edmonton." The places you touch on your journey are only incidental. Your real destination is your starting place.

This, I believe, is fundamental. And I only introduce the notion here to lend point to my conclusion that this philosophical cycle is not nearly so well completed by air as by train.

To reduce one's home by travel, one must recede from it gradually. One must feel the earth flowing reluctantly by, each milestone a sigh. One must be conscious on the return, of a jubilation in the landscape. This time, the milestones sing.

But this does not happen on an air voyage. One winks an eye, and Weiskin & Co. is beneath. A deep breath, and Red Deer lies below.

It would be like going on a constant diet of rare wines.

Nevertheless, one cannot ignore the exhilarating quality of the wines.

There is something reminiscent of Creation about a flight across Canada. One touches, however lightly, upon the drama of those six tremendous days. One sees the villages of the West spring up suddenly like piles of living ashes upon the yellow-white snow. One sees the great cities of the Dominion arise from infinity as at the speaking of a Word.

There will always be something in flying—and even professional would adopt it, no matter what the cost per month was.

It was figured out by the proposer of the system that at least one thousand people would subscribe in the first month and that eventually this would increase to about twenty five hundred and would be on a sound paying basis for all time.

The proposition put before the phone department was a common-sense, honest, revenue-bearing proposition even though that department ruled that it had its disadvantages, some of which are as follows:

Cost of special equipment would be out of all proportion to the revenue, but today this cost is not obtainable. In the early stages of installation of this equipment this is admitted, but even so it would have been a noble war effort and appreciated by the Government and probably would have been adopted all over the country and in effect today.

It was carefully figured out that the system would be on a paying basis within two years.

The city by accepting certain rental fees for the service, stated that the department would have to assume the responsibility of infallible service. In this case it would not be necessary under any circumstances for the city to guarantee a definite service no more than a street car leaving a certain point at a definite time each day.

The city claimed that if a subscriber failed to get his call they would be held responsible for the loss of time of the subscriber. This is not so due to the fact that the city would be safeguarded in the agreement.

Finally it must be stated that the entire proposition was turned down and that the suggestion and idea was not adopted which makes it evident that our officials of the telephone department were not far-sighted enough to adopt the idea which would have been a boon and blessing to all of us.

JUSTITIA INTEGRITAS.

Editor, Bulletin: I was rather startled the other evening when the national newscast that an innovation had been created in Toronto by the adoption of an alarm clock system whereby a call is made by the telephone department to those who desire to be awakened at a certain hour of the day or night by creating less absenteeism from work.

In this respect I would like to point out that a similar system was proposed to the Edmonton Telephone Department as far back as September, 1943, by one of their employees which roughly was as follows: "The advantages of the proposed system" was obvious. The subscriber is relieved of the responsibility of setting his alarm clock. The telephone department receives certain revenue in return for giving the services. The war effort is presumably benefited by reduction in absenteeism.

In this instance it must be remembered that all factories were at a very peak at this period and were numbered by tens of thousands of workers and as now.

There were many people who wished to take advantage of a telephone call system and practically every person canvassed stated they would adopt it, no matter what the cost per month was.

Editor, Bulletin: Articles have appeared in our daily press throwing grave doubts upon the practicability of bringing the war criminals to trial.

The writers pointed out that it had not been found feasible to bring the Kaiser to court and in all probability similar reason would be advanced when the time came to deal with those who have been responsible and active in perpetrating the bestial crimes of this war.

The disquieting news comes from England which suggests that Hitler, Mussolini and their partners should not be put "in the dock of a criminal court," but should be dealt with politically as was Napoleon!

If, says the report, all war criminals are to be tried the court "would be sitting for years on end."

Are these brutes then to escape the just punishment they so richly deserve simply because it would take too long to try them? What do Canadians think about such a proposal?

Editor, Bulletin: The lack of enforcement of by-laws in this city are the least deplorable, even causing the death of children.

A few weeks ago two young children were killed, no doubt, because they did not have lights on their bicycles. Hundreds are riding them without lights in this city.

I nearly ran into some boys who had no lights on their bikes, as I was coming along Whyte avenue east a few weeks since. They could not be seen, as lights from street lamps and others on the road, prevented one seeing them.

I think the city should be held responsible for accidents occurring through lack of enforcement of by-laws.

U.S. Servicemen's Christian League Observes First Anniversary Here

A religious celebration tinged with a flavor of international goodwill marked the evening that was enjoyed by more than 100 uniformed members of the Servicemen's Christian League at the base chapel of the Army Air Force unit of the United States Air Transport Command here Tuesday night.

Arranged as a celebration of the first anniversary of the founding of the league movement amongst members of United States armed forces stationed in Edmonton, the service was attended by civic and provincial dignitaries as well as senior officers of Canadian and American forces. Principal address of the evening was given by Sgt. Ldr. The Rev. J. A. Forbes, RCAF chaplain, who was stationed with a Canadian Spitfire wing in Europe subsequent to the D-Day operations.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCES

Describing some of his experiences with American and Canadian troops overseas, Sgt. Ldr. Forbes declared "we are living in one of the greatest periods in human history." He told the gathering, composed of American troops, Canadian Army, Navy and RCAF personnel, and civilians from both sides of the international border, that the war has been a time for greatness. He had seen this greatness in many places, on the Atlantic ocean where troopships battled their way through danger-crested waves; in London during the blitz; in the bomber boys of the RCAF and the RAF; among U.S. fighter pilots; and in the American and British armies.

Great occasions, he declared, bring out the greatness in men, and he elaborated on his remarks by comparing the fanatic bravery of German soldiers, resisting oncoming British tanks while being literally blown to bits; and the other kind of greatness shown in British tank commanders who caught the grenades lobbed at their turrets by the enemy, and hurled them back amongst the Nazis.

The speaker asserted that religion and worship helped these young men in their greatness. "Our boys are not pious, and they dislike any religious display," the former Winnipeg minister said. However, he pointed out the truth in the American-credited remark that "there are no atheists in the fox-holes."

"There aren't any in this front lines anywhere," the RCAF officer stated.

HARD PERIOD AHEAD

Sgt. Ldr. Forbes warned that the first years of peace will be infinitely harder than the years of war. "The choices and decisions of the future will be complex, and we dare not fail," he said. "God will help us as we face the challenge of that time," he concluded.

Col. Eugene Stevens, Air Force unit commanding officer, addressed the congregation on behalf of the commanding general, and referred briefly to the friendliness existing between the United States and Canada.

Bringing greetings to the Servicemen's Christian League, the Hon. J. C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, pointed out that both the United States and Canada have the same ideals in this war; ideals which revolve around the principles of liberty, justice, mercy and truth. Addressing the Americans in the gathering, the governor said, "We feel that we are at home with you in all we do in this conflict." He paid tribute to the trust and respect held mutually between the two countries.

Premier Ernest C. Manning warned that in looking at the days ahead, "unless we as individuals and as nations are prepared to recognize the Christian way of life, we are building on unstable foundations."

IMPORTANT CONTRIBUTION

"It seems to me," the premier said, "that a Christian organization such as this is making a particularly important contribution to mankind in general in preparation for the coming period of rebuilding."

Robert B. Sirepser, American consul, compared the obtaining of salvation with getting a refreshing drink of water. "You can dip your mouth right into the pool," he said, "or you can put your mouth right over the faucet—but I don't find either system satisfactory. What you need is a receptacle to put the water into before you try to drink it—and organizations such as the SMCL provide that receptacle into which salvation can be collected before you attempt to imbibe it."

Mayor Fry, in carrying greetings from the city, admitted he had felt some misgivings when told several years ago about the then contemplated arrival of Americans in Edmonton. He was happy to congratulate the gathering on the spirit and collaboration these Americans had shown in their sojourn here.

As president of the league, Sgt. T. C. Sizemore, in a short address, traced the inception and development of the movement. The Edmonton branch had been recognized by national league headquarters in Washington, he said.

The service was conducted by Capt. James R. Cox, base chaplain, and opened with an organ prelude "Adagio." Sgt. O. G. Wilson was organist. The USAAF 550th band sextette presented the feature "Tantum." Invocation was pronounced by the Rt. Rev. W. F. Barfoot, bishop of Edmonton, and the congregation was welcomed by Lt. Col. R. L. Dougherty, staff chaplain, Al Div. ATC.

Edmonton's CBC radio artist, Miss Bernice McBeth, sang "Out of the Depths."

SCRIPTURE READING

Scripture reading was led by Capt. C. F. A. Clough, chaplain. Sgt. H. Mittenhall, violinist, and an organ postlude, "Pilgrim's Chorus" and two hymns, "Lead On, O King Eternal," and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" rounded out the service.

The benediction was pronounced by Sdn. Ldr. Ashford, RCAF chaplain, stationed at NWAC.

Other honorary guests included a representative of Brig. Gen. D. V. Gaffney, commanding general, Alaskan Division, ATC, USAAF, and AvM T. A. Lawrence, air officer commanding NWAC.

Hon. Mr. Justice Frank Ford, chancellor of the University of Alberta; Dr. J. McBeath Miller, president of the Edmonton Ministerial Association; Capt. E. T. Scragg, chaplain Northwest Veterans' Administration and Chaplain E. S. Ottley, RCN, were present.

In the attractive booklet prepared for the occasion, greetings were carried from the city, the province, and military officials.

The organization, under the sponsorship of Capt. Cox, has the following executive: president, Sgt. Sizemore; vice-president, Sgt. E. Gustavson; secretary, Cpl. A. Evans; treasurer, Cpl. A. Clark. In charge of arrangements for the anniversary service were: Sgt. H. E. Clouse, staff manager; Sgt. M. E. Schuller and Sgt. W. O. Willis, publicity; Sgt. B. Wilhelm, artist; Sgt. Clouse and Sgt. J. Porter, ushers.

Probably, heat is the one form of treatment which has been used the longest by man. It is extensively employed as a means of securing relief from pain and is possibly the one form of treatment most familiar to the greatest number of people.

The hot water bottle is certainly widely used, the bottle being filled with hot water and then pressed against the painful area; the electric pad is another commonly used heat treatment. The results secured through the application of heat in alleviating pain will convince the patient that the heat is doing good.

The ordinary hot tub bath as taken in the home, may be used in the treatment of certain disorders, and the same is true of the sweat bath. In taking the sweat bath, the patient is first immersed in a tub of warm water, then wrapped in a woolen blanket, put to bed, and covered with several other woolen blankets, being given plenty of hot lemonade to drink until he begins to perspire freely. This treatment is often of value in influenza, or in the treatment of the ordinary cold when accompanied by fever.

One important point to remember in regard to any type of heat treatment is: AVOID CHILLING AFTER THE HEAT APPLICATION. It is very important to avoid chilling and the patient must be kept warm afterward.

The hot application is a heat treatment which should be used more extensively than it is. To apply heat in this way, a folded towel is dipped in hot water, is partially wrung out and is then laid against the skin. As the towel becomes cool, it is removed and another hot towel then applied. Considerable care must be taken to avoid burning the skin. Hot applications over the entire abdomen will often provide noticeable relief when the patient is suffering from distress due to gas pains. Or, the hot applications may be used over any painful area and will be found to take out some of the soreness.

The hot Sitz bath, in which the patient sits in hot water, has been found of benefit in those cases where it is desirable to lessen congestion and to improve the circulation through the pelvic area.

The list of disorders in which heat may be effectively employed is almost endless; however, a short list is as follows: muscles rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica, arthritis, influenza, strains, sprains.

pelvic inflammation, ear-ache, and many others.

The chief benefits derived from the application of external heat are: first, an increase in the local circulation of blood flowing through the part where the heat is used; second, the lessening of congestion; third, the relaxation of contracted muscles; fourth, the relief of pain.

There are many sound reasons why heat has been employed by man in the treatment of disease, over so extended a period of time and this type of treatment will undoubtedly continue to be as popular in the future as it has been in the past. Unquestionably, heat may be used with good results in the treatment of many disorders where it is desirable to relieve inflammation and to place the body in a position where repair and healing quickly follow.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 100 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

seat in the Commons. The budget called for the expenditure of $1,500,000 for the army alone during the next critical months. The program provided for 500,000 men in the armed forces and covered the activities of as many more in civil service and war production.

MOST VITAL BUDGET

The budget was probably the most vital that the government had to present, and to explain it, it was essential that the defence minister have a seat in the Commons.

He said that public life was the last thing he had wanted to enter when Prime Minister Mackenzie King had asked him last November to take over the defence department. However, he had taken the post because the support of the army he had helped build was at stake and also because the country could not exist on an extension of life if there was no unity in the country.

DEMANDS TO KNOW IF SESSION PLANNED

CLARKSBURG, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP)—Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate in the Grey North by-election Feb. 5, said last night Prime Minister Mackenzie King should say now whether another session of parliament will be held before the next federal election.

In a speech at a political rally here, Mr. Case said the Liberal party was claiming that the only issue in the by-election was that of getting Defence Minister McNaughton, the government candidate, a seat in the Commons for the next session. If no session is to be held there was no need of finding Gen. McNaughton a seat.

The Liberal party was saying that the boys overseas needed Gen. McNaughton.

SAYS RALSTON WANTED

"The people of Canada don't want him as minister of national defence," said Mr. Case. "They want Ralston (Col. J. L. Ralston, former defence minister) and they challenge Mr. King to reinstate him. If Gen. McNaughton was needed by the boys overseas he would be there now and not on the retired list of officers as full general."

Col. Ralston, who resigned last November when the government would not accept his suggestion that NRMA troops be made available for overseas service, was "the ideal champion of the people's view."

"So determined was King to appease one province in the Dominion that he deliberated consulted with and contrived with McNaughton in order that he might throw Ralston overboard. And this despite the fact that Ralston's record was one of the most enviable of any man in Canada."

Col. Ralston had stood beside Mr. King for two years after the 1942 plebiscite believing that "the prime minister would institute conscription if necessary."

In speeches here and at Rockyln, Ont., Air Marshal Godfrey said Prime Minister Mackenzie King was asking electors to "shut their eyes and vote for McNaughton."

"They are to forget the burning war issues Mr. King has done so much to create and the vital peace issue he had done so much to avoid."

TESTINGS OF OPINION

"Let me say that a free-born people has a right to express an opinion on the great issues of the day. Let me say that that is what by-elections are for. They are democratic testings of opinion."

Mr. McNaughton himself has announced that he will continue in office regardless of what Grey North says. Col. Ralston (Col. J. L.

Ralston, former defence minister) would fill the defence post at least as well, and certainly with more conviction."

J. W. Noseworthy, CCF member of parliament for York South, spoke in support of Air Marshal Godfrey and said: "Monopoly had left a trail of ruin in Grey North. Three cement plants in Owen Sound and another in Shallow Lake had been shut down and 3,000 people were put out of work."

"After driving all independents out of business, by selling a dollar bag under the market price, this monopoly jacked the price up. Now the people of this county have not only lost a thriving industry, but they have been forced to pay the monopoly fixed price. Today, this monopoly, Canada Cement Company, is a rich war profiteer, but it has left a trail of ruin behind it."

McNAUGHTON ASKED TO PUBLISH LETTERS

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP)—The Owen Sound Sun-Times yesterday carried a full-page advertisement, sponsored by the Progressive Conservative party, asking Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal candidate in the Grey North by-election Feb. 5, to publish all letters exchanged between Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate, and Jack Willis, Aurora, Ont., druggist.

The advertisement appeared four days after a two-page advertisement, sponsored by the Liberal party, appeared in the Sun-Times. The Liberal advertisement included reproduction of a letter written to Mr. Willis by Mr. Case outlining Mr. Case's views on conscription.

FAVORED NEW SYSTEM

Mr. Case said in a letter, written last November, that he was opposed to conscription as such but that he favored a system of selective service and full mobilization of resources.

Speaking at Meaford Monday night, Mr. Case accused the Liberal party of carrying on a smear campaign, and said that Gen. McNaughton, as Liberal candidate, was responsible for the advertising campaign being carried on by the Liberal party.

He claimed the advertisement had been presented in such a way as to make him appear anti-conscriptionist and challenged Gen. McNaughton to publish the letter that "Mr. Willis wrote to me in which he gave me his opinion of Gen. McNaughton."

Tuesday's Progressive Conservative advertisement also asked that Gen. McNaughton publish all letters allegedly shown to party leaders by Prime Minister Mackenzie King a year ago. "This would perhaps relate to the reasons why Gen. McNaughton came back to Canada and was replaced by another commander-in-chief of the Canadian Army," the advertisement stated.

McNAUGHTON SPEAKS ON REINFORCEMENTS

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP)—Defence Minister McNaughton said in an interview yesterday that a person could not get a clear view of the reinforcement situation overseas by "making a dash into that great theatre of war and coming right back."

To get a complete picture of the reinforcement situation required a most "meticulous" investigation by a person with that particular job to do, Gen. McNaughton told a press conference called to allow him to meet the newspapermen covering the Grey North by-election of Feb. 5.

He believed a person could get a report on reinforcements after studying the situation in Canada and after moving through the echelons in Britain and in the war theatres and through the left-out-of-battle groups near the front.

CAN'T GO OVERSEAS

Gen. McNaughton said that his work in Canada has prevented him from going overseas, but he had appointed Lt. Gen. E. W. Sanson, of Stanley, N.B., to serve as inspector general of reinforcements.

"He will serve as my eyes," said Gen. McNaughton. "I am anxious that the people have a clear and

Or Even Married Errol Flynn of Movies Won't Admit He's a Papa

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Errol Leslie Flynn, Hollywood movie star, yesterday declined to discuss birth of a baby registered in the federal district vital statistics bureau as that of Nora Eddington and of "Leslie Flynn, cinema actor of Hollywood."

Flynn said: "No comment except to observe this makes the third or fourth time I've been reported married the last couple of years. At least this ought to stop me the bigamy award next year."

The child was registered as born Oct. 10 at the British hospital in Mexico City, and under the name Duadi Elynn Eddington. In official registrations in Mexico the father's name precedes that of the mother's. At the Mexico City address given by the mother at the vital statistics office, it was reported that she had left for Cuernavaca.

ANNOUNCES MARRIAGE

In Los Angeles yesterday Jack Eddington, a Navy chief yeoman, said his daughter, Nora, and Errol Flynn were married in Acapulco, Mex., in July or August, 1943. Miss Eddington went to Acapulco by plane in August, 1943, to meet Flynn, her mother told reporters at that time.

"I was asked not to reveal the marriage," Eddington told a reporter yesterday. "I don't know the baby was on the way, but I am overjoyed by the news of the birth."

Independent view of the situation as it has developed.

The truth of the situation would be told to the Canadian people. He said that the reinforcement program drawn up prior to last October, the program arranged by "my predecessor" for October and the plans for the sending of an additional 16,000 troops overseas over a period of months now were up to date.

Gen. McNaughton said he was "thoroughly enjoying" the Grey North by-election campaign in which he is running as government candidate.

RAVENNA, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP)—S. E. Leavens, CCF member of the legislature for Toronto Woodbine and provincial secretary of the party, speaking at a political rally last night said the CCF proposes a national health service by which every Canadian would be entitled to whatever medical or hospital care he may need regardless of his income.

"Patients will remain free to choose the doctor they wish and doctors will be free to choose their patients," he said. "The difference will be that the community instead of the individual foots the bill."

BRACKEN SAYS VOTE IS GREAT CHALLENGE

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP)—To Grey North, John Bracken said today, has fallen the "greatest challenge ever imposed on any single Canadian electoral constituency since Confederation—approval or rejection of the King-McNaughton formula for partial conscription."

"That," said the Progressive Conservative party leader in a speech prepared for delivery at an afternoon by-election meeting in the Owen Sound city auditorium, "is the only issue."

His speech today was Mr. Bracken's first of three addresses he will make in Grey North in support of the Conservative candidate, Garfield Case, who is opposing Defence Minister McNaughton, Liberal candidate, and Air Vice Marshal A. E. Godfrey of the CCF in the Feb. 5 by-election.

HOME FROM FRONTS

Mr. Bracken, just returned from a tour of the battlefronts, devoted most of his speech to the reinforcement question and how he believed the men at the front felt about it.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, he said, was alone responsible for the by-election.

"But I suggest there is no need of an immediate election, as there was no need of a by-election. If you defeat McNaughton, Prime Minister King will bring Mr. Ralston back as his defence minister. The troops have confidence in this man and the Canadian people have confidence in him. All that is required of Mr. King is that he leave Col. Ralston to take the action which he recommended three months ago should be taken."

No one should be fooled by Mr. King's pretense that Gen. McNaughton must be elected if the men overseas are to be reinforced.

BLAMES POLICIES

Mr. Bracken charged Prime Minister Mackenzie King with being "the one man whose policies are responsible, above all others, for the division and bitterness that exists," he said. Gen. McNaughton's election to the commons was not necessary to carry on the war effort and added that the frantic appeals of the Prime Minister to electors of Grey North were an admission of impending defeat.

The men at the front had fought without adequate reinforcements and by present policy would have to do so again because the government's reinforcement plans were "wholly inadequate to meet conditions of active warfare."

"About one thing the men overseas are in tight agreement," he said. "Gen. McNaughton left them under a cloud but he continued to build the affection and confidence which he had enjoyed while he led them as a soldier; but for his action in supplanting Ralston, former Defence Minister, on this issue as vital to them, most of them had him in utter contempt. Their judgment is based entirely on what Mr. King and Gen. McNaughton planned and are planning."

The men felt the government had let them down and that the people of Canada had been "all too complacent in letting the government get away with its two-army plan."

PRaises RALSTON

The people of Grey North had an unequalled opportunity to restore the faith of the men overseas in their country and their people. If they endorsed Mr. Case they also endorsed Col. Ralston—"the one great Canadian Liberal of his generation who had the courage to state the issue as he saw it and stick to his guns."

Turning to the CCF Mr. Bracken said whatever might be the party's reason for joining in the by-election it could not be a desire to rectify the rank discrimination between the men who fight for Canada "for it was that very policy of discrimination that the CCF members upheld by their votes in the House of Commons barely two months ago."

Canadian Navy Warship Sunk In N. Atlantic

behavior of every man in the ship after the torpedo struck was given by Cmdr. Campbell and the other surviving officers, Lt. Milton J. A. Cameron of Montreal, the executive officer, and Sub-Lt. Victor I. Graves of Nelson, B.C.

"They came up from below decks and abandoned ship as calmly as if it had been a practice drill," Cmdr. Campbell said. "They even joked about it. I heard Batt (Coder Alex Batt of Islington, Ont.) on the Carley floats give a news bulletin—'Flash' Canadian minesweeper destroys German torpedo."

SEABOAT LOWERED

Orderliness of the "abandon ship" was shown by the fact that the seaboard was lowered and enough Carley floats cut loose to handle the entire crew. All were wearing lifejackets, the boat and floats were kept together, and not a man was lost after abandoning ship.

When the rescue corvette reached the scene, the men had been in the water and on floats about a half hour. Their teeth were chattering but they still were bravely singing "Oh, Come, All Ye Faithful."

The Fennel, under command of Lt. Comdr. Kenneth L. Johnson of Quebec, stopped engines in spite of the U-boat and took all survivors aboard by means of scramble nets in 10 or 12 minutes. The Fennel's boat was lowered, in the charge of Lieut. J. K. H. Mason of Toronto and picked up four men from the Claycoquet's boat, which was overcrowded with 18 or 20. The others on floats, were able to climb the scramble nets.

Lieut. Cameron was sitting in the wardroom when the torpedo explosion lifted him from the chair, bounced him against the deckhead above and then knocked him down again as he was clambering to his feet. Cut near the left eye, he could not recall clearly how he got out of the wardroom.

"Things were a shambles and I remember pulling something out of the way to get to the door," he said. "Luckily the door was open so I was able to get out."

OFFICERS MISSING

Some of the other officers in their cabins below the wardroom are among the missing.

Narrowest escape was that of Stoker Peter Bewak of Kapuskasing, Ont., who was in the aftermost part of the engine room, with 60 feet to travel to the upper deck. Bewak made it up the ladders in 1½ minutes but had to go the last seven feet through a small cramped ventilator shaft.

On duty in the boiler rooms were Petty Officers Albert Olson, of Stettin, Alta., and Paul Hayston, of Hinton, Ont., and Halifax, and Stokers Owen Greenfield, of Edmonton, and V. H. Sibinski, Dauphin, Man. They stayed below turning off fuel and making things safe—Hayston even taking time to light a cigarette

INDIAN RULER'S DIVORCED WIFE WEDS MAILMAN

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The former Maharani of Indore, whose ex-husband rules 7,000,000 Indians and has an annual income of about $70,000,000 a year, has married a Laguna Beach, Calif., mail carrier. News of the marriage of the divorced wife of the Indian potentate and Charles W. Masters, 30, in Las Vegas, Nev., Jan. 15, was disclosed yesterday. She signed her marriage application as Marguerite L. Holkar, 36.

Family Allowance Director Named

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Wing Cmdr. R. Byrns Curry, 40, deputy chairman of the Canadian Legion National Education Committee, has been appointed director of the government's new family allowance organization, it was learned yesterday.

Wing Cmdr. Curry was released by the RCA last September to take the position with the Legion. A member of the Nova Scotia Bar Association he makes his home at Kentville, N.S., but has devoted most of his life to education.

Advertisements by the Civil Service Commission inviting qualified men to apply for the $7,200 a year position as director of family allowances, brought protests last month from a number of women's organizations. These groups asked that applications from women be also considered and this step was subsequently taken. Officials said the position was the most remunerative in the government service ever thrown open to women.

Many Prisoners In German Camp Freed by Soviets

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(CP)—The Moscow radio, quoting a press dispatch, said today that a "large number" of prisoners had been freed from the Proskow concentration camp.

The camp, said the broadcast, was "established by the Germans when they smashed the Warsaw uprising last year."

"Between 2,000 and 15,000 Warsaw people" were packed daily into the camp, said the dispatch, and some days as many as 70,000 were herded there. Many were tortured "by the Gestapo and certain members of the home army."

Deny Secret Pacts Made by Churchill At Parley Abroad

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(Reuters)—A denial that Prime Minister Churchill had entered into secret agreements at a conference abroad was given in the House of Commons yesterday by the undersecretary for foreign affairs, George Hall.

Richard Stokes, Labor, said that after the prime minister's return from one conference abroad, Foreign Secretary Eden in December, 1943, had assured that there had been no secret understanding, whereas the prime minister had said that he agreed with Premier Stalin to what was tantamount to a forcible adjustment of Russia's western frontier.

Mr. Hall said so far as he knew Mr. Churchill's statement still stood. No secret agreements had been entered into.

before making his way to the deck.

Two seamen credited with getting the seaboard away by cutting the falls with axes were AB, Merwyn Crane, Mount Forest, Ont., and AB, R. Nordlund, Vancouver.

The prize tale of the survivors was that of Stoker George St. Amour of Montreal and his pipe. St. Amour, remembered as he was stepping over the side that he had forgotten his pipe. Back he went for the messdeck, unlocked his small attic case, got the pipe, climbed back to the deck and jumped.

"Well, it was a very good pipe that I'd paid $12.50 for in Boston," he explained.

For two of the survivors, it was the "shortest draft" of their naval careers. AB Van Zeylen of Nassau, Bahamas, and electrical artificer Fred Peel of Edmonton had joined the ship only a few hours before she sailed on her last trip.

Engine room artificer Leslie Lott, Edmonton and Halifax, was surprised to find after he reached hospital that he had been getting about on a broken leg. He was injured in the engine room when the explosion knocked him down.

The Claycoquet, named after Claycoquet inlet, a small bay on the British Columbia coast, was the first warship built at Prince Rupert, B.C., and carried on the wardroom bulkhead a plaque presented by the citizens of Prince Rupert. She was the "adopted" ship of the RIDE branch at Vernon, B.C.

The Claycoquet went on to the east coast in October, 1941 and most of her service was in convoy escort duties in the northwest Atlantic.

SERVED IN GULF

She was in the Gulf of St. Lawrence in the summer of 1942 when submarine activity was at its height and helped tow in a torpedoed freighter. She also was with the corvette Charlottetown when she was torpedoed and sunk, and picked up the 53 Charlottetown survivors.

In the summer of 1943 the Claycoquet was one of the minesweepers which cleared the approaches to Halifax harbor when a German minelayer was laid and was credited with an assist on one mine.

Last spring the Claycoquet was attached for a time to HMCS Kings, officer training establishment at Halifax, for training purposes. After a summer refit, she went back to steady service.

Main Figures Are En Route To Big 3 Meet

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
LONDON, Jan. 31.—(BUP)—The Big Three meeting today appeared imminent with Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, President Roosevelt and U.S. Secretary of State Edward Stettinius apparently en route to the conference place.

Both Churchill and Eden have left Britain. They failed to appear in their customary places in the House of Commons yesterday. Roosevelt failed to deliver his usual birthday address from Washington.

It was revealed today that Stettinius arrived in Italy yesterday and that he and Harry Hopkins, Roosevelt's advance agent, had left Italy for an unknown destination—presumably the conference place.

In Commons, Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee and Foreign Undersecretary Richard Law answered questions addressed to Churchill and Eden respectively.

A German DNB dispatch yesterday said a "high British personality" had passed through Paris by plane en route to the Near East by way of Rome.

"One considers it not impossible that this personality is Eden, who is said to be on his way to the place where the Big Three meeting will be held."

(A French broadcast reported by BBC said Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's special representative, was expected to leave Rome for Moscow soon by way of the Near East.)

Urges U.S. Retain Marianas Islands As Base For Fleet

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Artemus Gates, assistant secretary of the navy for air, said in an interview yesterday the United States Pacific fleet must keep the Marianas Islands as a permanent western Pacific base.

His declaration followed by two days the announcement that Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz had already established forward headquarters, several thousand miles west of Pearl Harbor. (The exact location was not disclosed but Guam and Saipan have been mentioned prominently in previous speculation.)

Mr. Gates said other bases should also be kept and maintained. He did not specify others.

Confirm Report B.C. Lieut.-Gov. Going Overseas

VICTORIA, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Governor House confirmed yesterday that Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Woodward is planning a visit in April to British Columbia troops overseas. Official announcement of plans is being delayed until travel priorities are arranged. It will be the lieutenant-governor's second wartime trip abroad. Before taking the governorship he went to England as assistant to Hon. C. D. Howe, then minister of munitions and supply. Their ship was torpedoed and they spent some time in an open lifeboat.

GHOST VOICE INTERRUPTS HITLER TALK

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(CP)—A heckling ghost voice broke into Hitler's anniversary broadcast last night with repeated sharp jabs. Early in his speech Hitler boasted that National Socialism had built up Germany "after the Versailles treaty destroyed the German republic economically—leaving 7,000,000 jobless, farmers ruined and artisans wiped out." Here the ghost voice interrupted: "and look how you've ruined the country now."

"Careful Timing" Of Work Projects

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Plans for post-war reconstruction, insofar as they relate to public works in the federal, provincial and municipal field, call for as careful timing of such projects as can be achieved, it was learned yesterday.

The timing will be related to the need for employment in addition that provided by private industry and normal commercial activity as it develops in different areas.

So far, it was understood, the federal government has declined to give provincial and municipal assistance in post-war public works projects, although it has encouraged them to proceed with plans for such works.

The emphasis in reconstruction, however, is to be placed on the conversion of industry to peacetime production with a view to the provision of as many jobs as possible under non-governmental auspices.

New Auto Plates Will Arrive Soon

Early delivery to 125,000 motor vehicle license plates has been promised the provincial secretary's department, Edmund Trowbridge MBE, deputy secretary, said Wednesday.

Ninety-one thousand plates have been ordered for private autos, while the balance is split up into truck, bus and motorcycle plates. The new licenses will go on sale about March 15, through government offices and the AMA. The new license year begins April 1. The new license plates will be orange on black, the reverse of 1943-44 plates now in use.

St. John Parish Names Officers

W. J. Cheladyn was elected chairman of the Ukrainian Orthodox parish of St. John when the group held its annual meeting in the parish hall Sunday.

P. A. Miskew was elected vice-chairman and other officers are: M. Magus, secretary; P. A. Pash, vice-secretary; W. Bazuk, treasurer; Paul Melnyk, supervisor of property.

It was reported that Sunday school attendance had increased more than 100 per cent during the last year and donations to the church through Christmas carolling amounted to more than $1,000 last year.

Reach Decision On Disposition U.S. Facilities

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—(BUP)—An agreement reached between the Canadian and United States governments relating to the disposition of defence facilities provided in Canada by the government of the United States, it was announced today by Prime Minister MacKenzie King.

Under the agreement both governments accept a recommendation of the permanent joint board of defence.

Defence facilities are divided into two classes—immovables (buildings or similar installations) and movables.

Within three months of the agreement coming into force the United States government will supply the Canadian government with a list of the immovable facilities which it wishes to bring under the agreement.

APPRAISE VALUE

Each government will appoint a qualified appraiser and the two will agree on "the fair market value" of each facility "at the time and place of the appraisal." If the two appraisers cannot agree, they will select a third appraiser to determine the value.

The price established by the appraisers will be paid to the United States by Canada. It is provided, however, that where the retention or disposal of a facility would result in the assumption of costs by the Canadian government, such as charges for custody or demolition, these will be taken into consideration in the final accounting.

Existing facilities not listed by the United States government would within one year after the cessation of hostilities be relinquished to the crown without cost, either in the right of Canada or in the right of the province in which they lie as may be appropriate under Canadian law.

Further details concerning the agreement were given out in Edmonton Wednesday by Mr. Gen. W. W. Foster, CMG, DSO, VD, special commissioner for defence projects in Northwest Canada.

In the case of movables, after the U.S. has removed all of such desired, the Canadian government will arrange to purchase such remaining articles as it desires. Proceeds of sales by the Canadian government, less costs, will be paid to the U.S. government.

HANDLE DISPOSAL

As in the case of immovables War Assets Corp., acting with the Crown Assets Allocation committee, will handle the disposal of immovables for the Canadian government.

Outright purchases will be made only for government departments or organizations or individuals immediately associated with them in furthering the war effort.

It is not the intention of the government to make direct purchases for any purpose not associated with the war effort.

Applications to purchase movables may be addressed to the War Assets Corporation.

War Assets Corp. is the appraiser appointed by the Canadian government.

Took Correspondence Course in Flying: RCAF Officer Wins DFM

TWO HILLS: A correspondence course in flying may or may not have been responsible for Pilot Officer Paul Soldan's successful completing a tour of 34 operational flights over Europe—the 25-year-old flight engineer isn't sure.

At any rate, the "how to fly" manuscripts that he studied intensively, and the notes he copiously made on different aspects of doing like the birds do, did instill a keen interest in all aspects pertaining to taking wing, in the kind of the youngster who has later to win the Distinguished Flying Medal for his exploits over the continent.

The medal, with its blue and white diagonal stripes, was awarded to Soldan prior to his commissioning, last year.

Stationed in England during his time overseas, the flyer liked the old country but has a deep preference for things Canadian. When the war is over he would like to expand his present interest in Ferry Command with a view to making a career out of caring for the big planes that whip from continent to continent.

The airman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dmetri Soldan, of Two Hills. He received his education at the Lanark public school, and is at present spending a month's leave with his parents here.

And the fact that he completed 34 missions entirely without mishap is attributed to "luck, just plain luck."

Red Cross, Church Groups Organize

THREE HILLS: The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Red Cross branch: J. E. McFee, president; W. Harter, secretary; A. Purvis, treasurer; Mrs. W. Mullinger, war work convener. Money raised during 1944 was $2,300.

The Presbyterian Women's Society elected the following officers: Mrs. S. Quigley, honorary president; Mrs. W. Harter, president; Mrs. Gustavson, vice-president; Mrs. R. Grant, secretary; Mrs. C. Davidson, treasurer.

The Ladies Aid elected the following officers: Mrs. R. C. Robertson, honorary president; Mrs. Cram, president; Mrs. M. Helton and Mrs. H. Parry, vice-presidents; Mrs. B. Brinson, secretary; Mrs. V. Burnett, treasurer.

Meeting of the CCF group saw the election of C. Christie, president and Mrs. A. J. Cameron, secretary. Plans were discussed for future activities of the organization.

Howard Hammer Is Trade Board Head

CORONATION: Howard Hammer was elected president of the Board of Trade at the annual meeting. Hon. C. E. Gerhart is honorary president, and other officers are Dr. J. C. O'Brien, vice-president, and Alex Stewart, secretary-treasurer. T. McColm and C. A. Ross will conduct a canvass for new members.

Annual meeting of ratepayers heard reports from Mayor John Anderson and Town Secretary E. R. Merriek. The town has a surplus of $6,000 with a further $10,000 to be received from the new hospital district for the local hospital. Chairman of the school board, G. A. Wallace, discussed the desirability of Coronation becoming part of the Castor school division. A meeting of the department of education, Neutral Hills School Division and the Coronation school board will discuss the matter further in February.

DAILY WAR MAP—EXCLUSIVE IN THE EDMONTON BULLETIN—Germany's defensive dikes against the tides of defeat which roll from east and west are expected to be along the lines of the Rhine River on the west, the Oder on the east. Between them lies the heart of German war production. In the Rhineland are the great mines, steel works and factories of the Saar and Ruhr valleys. In Silesia, now under the shadow of the Hammer and Sickle, lies the only big industrial region left to Hitler not attacked or threatened by the Western Allies. NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A. A. CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By SYD THOMAS

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Now that Larry MacPhail is back in baseball as head of the always-powerful New York Yankees, baseball fans around Montreal are wondering if he will renew his interest in the Royals, who were somewhat unhappy the last season or two. Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara points out that MacPhail always had quite a warm spot in his heart for the French-Canadian city when he was with Brooklyn Dodgers, and hints there is an outside chance he might buy up the Royals franchise. ... With the Yankees behind them, Royals might do some good work for themselves in the international loop.

COMING EVENTS

Latest news from Winnipeg that the football boys want interest in the game "stirred up" in Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon and Edmonton for future planning, is a good omen. The Winnipeg football club, 'tis said, will devote more than passing consideration of the idea this year, so everything will be all set to get the inter-provincial football union competition going after the war. The westerners really miss their football these war years.

HOME COMING

Jimmy, who rose from club punching on the west coast to the world's welter boxing title, hasn't been back to Vancouver for several years.

INCIDENTALLY

East coast rumors say Bobby Bauer and Porky Dumart, former Boston Bruins' Kraut liners, may show up with the RCAF team in the Halifax senior hockey loop.

Howie, Jr., son of the great Howie Morenz of Montreal, apparently has been pushing too hard in an effort to be as good as Morenz. The youngster's heart is none too good, so the senior Morenz' old No. 7 Canadiens' sweater may remain empty. ...

Ford Frick Only Candidate With More Than 1 Vote

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP)—If baseball heads a militant "action-now" group and names a commissioner at Saturday's joint meeting, Ford Frick appeared Tuesday to be the only possibility.

No other individual, either connected with the game or outside the sport, has a sizeable number of votes and if Frick is not selected it is probable the entire matter will be tabled until the December sessions.

According to unofficial tabulations, the count stands 12 to 4 for Frick, although some of his supporters are not convinced of the necessity of an immediate choice.

No other candidate has more than one backer.

The National league president isn't talking, pushing aside questions as to his availability with "it's purely an academic question."

As far as I know nobody is planning to ask me one way or the other."

Under the old major league agreement a vote of nine clubs was enough to elect but the new pact, now being drawn up by a 10-man committee, may change the requirements to three-fourths of the 16 teams.

Details of the new agreement will not be known until Saturday.

Derby at Epsom Out for This Year

EPSOM, Surrey, England, Jan. 31.—(Reuters)—There is no likelihood of the Derby being run at Epsom Downs this year, even if the war comes to an early conclusion.

No start on repairs to the stands and course equipment has yet been possible.

Six months at least, it is estimated, would be required before racing could take place.

"There is no possibility of the Derby being run here this year and we are not even thinking about it," C. J. Langlands, clerk of the course, said Tuesday.

Coast Pitcher Hopes to Play For Card Team

VANCOUVER, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Bill Parrish of Vancouver is only 16 years old, but he holds a contract to pitch for the St. Louis Cardinals if he can get across the line.

I go to Winston-Salem in North Carolina if I can get across the line," Bill said in an interview Tuesday.

The Cardinals prospect is stocky, weighs 180 pounds and stands five feet 11 inches.

Bill said he won all his games last summer when he pitched for the Hamilton, Ont., Juniors. His batting average was .420. During the season he batted a no-hitter and five one-hit games.

"Scout Roy Disinger thought I might be all right if I got some pro experience," Bill said, explaining that he had attended the Cardinals farm school in Hamilton. "But the guy I give the most credit to is Dick Fowler, who used to pitch for Philadelphia."

Fowler, now in the Canadian army stationed at Hamilton, coached Parrish for some time before the school.

"I might go back to Hamilton if I can't get across the line," Bill said.

N.S. Coal Miners Plan Strike Action

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., Jan. 31.—(CP)—The National War Labor Board's refusal to authorize wage increases for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick miners was followed yesterday by the district convention of the United Mine Workers of America recommending strike action by April 1 in the event of a further "unsatisfactory decision" by the board. Final action on the board's Jan. 15 decision turning down the U.M.W. application is up to the district rank and file, and President Freeman Jenkins told the convention the district executive would recommend the rejection policy to the general membership.

Engineers Hold Ball

Weird and wonderful examples of the power of science decorated the Burn Tuesday night as the seventh annual ball of the Engineers of the University of Alberta took place. Each class was responsible for part of the decorations. The mining engineers erected a tunnel through which everyone had to pass to get on the floor. A model bridge complete with tiny moving cars was the work of the civil engineers. The chemical students were exhibiting a series of tubes and beakers filled with different colored liquids. The electrical engineers had erected a nerve meter and a question and answer board run by electricity.

During the intermission a supposedly "dead" man was brought into the hall and revived with an electrical charge from a high voltage transformer. One of the main features of the dance was the crowning of the queen, Muriel Smith, a third year electrical student, as presiding ruler of the 1945 Engineers' ball. The ceremony was preceded by a grand march in which all the engineers and their escorts took part.

Receiving during the evening were the patronesses, Mrs. G. W. Govier, Mrs. R. N. McManus and Mrs. E. D'Appollonia, Anatol Roshko, president of the Engineering Students' Society, and his escort, Miss Doris McCubbin.
